Swing Low Sweet Snowtube...

Jens Sorensen brought the house down with his lunchtime song and dance lesson today! The traditional Finland activity certainly spiced up the otherwise sugary lunch. The creative hand gestures (while not understood by all) added an extra laugh to the already humorous occasion. Thanks for the insight Jens!

Snow Tubing

Today, we all participated in the most anticipated activity of MMICC – snow tubing! There were nothing but smiles and laughs throughout the day, the only negative sentiment being “Do we have to leave (from Chris and Craig ?!” Some braves souls chose to defy the size of the raft and stuffed 13 people into one; for one of the scariest rides of the day! Lunch included many of the normal things we eat every day, with one exception – they were doused in maple sugar! It certainly was a truly Canadian experience to remember!

The Budapest TUBESUIT Game

Apparently, there’s more to ski hills than rafting and tubing. Our trendsetting friends from Budapest were kind enough to start TUBESUIT COMPETITION '09! The logistics of the game include stacking snowtubes on oneself until they reach right underneath your arms, and then bouncing around trying to knock over other competitors. There are no real winners to this game as everyone goes down eventually, although being rolled around once you’ve gone down can be fairly enjoyable.

Snowtube Blunders

Our pitiful VP External, Marian, woke up at 6:56 for the 7:00 exec meeting, and therefore neglected to put tights on underneath her snowpants. This proved to be disastrous when she mooned a sizeable crowd while playing the tubesuit game – not a pretty sight. Apologies!
